

DEPT. OF NATIONAL DEFENCE ARMY

National Defence Headquarters at Ottawa has denied reports that Canadian soldiers serving overseas for more than two years are being permitted to return to Canada on leave. After receiving numerous enquiries from wives, relatives and friends of soldiers overseas, Headquarters stated that no such arrangement exists and none is contemplated at present.

A relatively small number of men return from overseas each year. Some return for instructional duty, some on escort duty and others for discharge owing to medical reasons. Only a very small number are granted compassionate leave.

The Canadian Women's Army Corps needs hairdressers to keep the girls' hair looking attractive while on Army duty. The hairdressers will be stationed at various C. W. A. C. centres, and it is essential that they have their own equipment.

The C. W. A. C. is also seeking for enlistment girls who have had experience in cooking or are willing to train as cooks. Girls with accounting experience are being sought for employment as pay clerks.

INTERVIEW WITH CHAIRMAN

I was at ease just a second after being ushered into his office. Donald Gordon, Chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board at 41 years of age, a big, dark man, wearing heavy glasses, but with a twinkle in his eye, and a soft Scotch accent in his speech, dominates the room, the big piles of papers and documents on his desk, and you like him right away.

I thought, in this last article, you'd like to know something about the man who pulls the strings that juggle you living these days. But he didn't want to talk about himself. He'd just flown in from Vancouver, was busier than heck and said, after a little plain gossip, "Fire ahead, ask me questions. So I did. I had a few things in my mind that I know you have had unanswered, too. So take his answers, not mine."

"What, in a nutshell, are the benefits to citizens in general from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board?" I asked, and he replied. I made actual notes. "The savings to consumers of the country can roughly be estimated at $350,000,000, and to the taxpayers as a whole a similar amount in the costs of the war to date. That's cash, but there is a much greater saving for human terms, for if inflation were to rear its ugly head, money could not measure the human misery, to say nothing of the effectiveness of our part in the United Nations' war against Hitler and the Japs."

"Co-operation in Switch From Peace to War"

To my questions if disadvantages had cropped in, he admitted some had, but they were inherent in the switch from a peacetime to wartime economy, and none that cannot be worked out with the co-operation of primary producers, industry and consumers.

"Maybe I tried to stymie him when I asked if controls, such as price ceilings, would stay after the war, permanent or temporary. "That," he said, "will be matter of government policy and, in the final analysis, for the people themselves." I wanted elaboration. Supposing the war lasts two or three years more?

"Insofar as price control is concerned, it is the creature of government, but it will also depend, largely, upon the future form of the war itself and how Canada can best fit into an effective part in the offensive. If, for instance, parts of conquered Europe should be opened up, we would need to feed starving millions. That might be one thing. If it's tools for an offensive, that's another matter. We can only take such action as may be justified by the day-to-day developments. It's obvious that all of us must be ready to give up much of what we have been used to, and in even measure, if we are to be honest with ourselves in the demands for a total war effort."

"Would you mind answering me if I ask whether there is any political interference in your set-up?" Even his mustache bristled as he answered one word. "None."

"What About Subsidies?"

I wanted to know about subsidies. You know us people back in the country are liable to think they help, the big shot, and are designed for that purpose. He put me behind the eight-ball by saying this:

"As a matter of fact, subsidies are of relatively greater help to the little fellow than the big shot you speak of. The big fellow is generally in a stronger financial position, and could weather the storms, but it subsidies were not paid to the little fellows they would be one first to fall by the wayside. Subsidies are paid and designed mainly for two purposes: one, to assure a stable cost of living, and secondly to assure a supply of essential goods. These are avoided in kind can definitely be said in the interests of the entire population. They are paid in no case to increase profits, and the strictest accounting is made throughout."

"That dominating figure of a man leaned over his desk as he spoke so seriously and earnestly, I thought, to me as Mr. Dickey. When I wanted to know if his surveys showed that more compulsion is necessary or are people co-operating with the administration."

"We have the finest co-operation imaginable from the rank and file of Canadian people," he declared. "In this connection we are the envy of our neighbours and our friends across the sea. True, some selfish interests appear from time to time, but we cannot permit any deviation in the policy laid down by the government. A few outliers (and a mighty few, he made it plain) try to test the game, but we have one standard remedy for them and that is recourse to the courts of the land. What happens then is the responsibility of the judiciary."

"We have the finest co-operation in a democratic country," Mr. Gordon pointed out, "can equal in effectiveness the co-operation of a people such as ours acting of their own volition with enlightenment and understanding."

"We Have Done Our Best"

The chairman assured me he was aware that an organization like the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, run by ordinary human beings, had made mistakes and has its shortcomings; and here he pointed a really big index finger at me. "We have done our best, all of us." He was sure that the anti-inflation policy of the government has, at heart, the best long run interests of the wage earning class. To wreck that policy, or to make its administration impossible, is an act he considers one of self-destruction. Well, you readers out in the country can take it or leave it. I have a seasonal price range and which required higher prices to maintain supply, or, alternatively, subsidies were added to the existing price.

You remember how the latter was

NEW LEAF-RUST RESISTANT WHEATS

Owing to publicity from the University of Minnesota regarding a new strain of wheat that is resistant to leaf rust, there has been a great demand for further information.

Actually, there are several strains, the best of which has yet to be selected. They have been developed by successive "back-crosses" of Thatcher x Hope hybrids to Thatcher. The aim was to transfer the leaf rust resistance to Thatcher, and we have every reason to believe that the efforts of the Minnesota plant breeders have met with a large measure of success. They are about to begin increasing one of the new leaf-rust resistant strains.

The strain which will probably be increased has not been tested in Canada, but two others of this group were in variety tests in Western Canada in 1942. They gave higher yields than Thatcher in districts where leaf rust was abundant; but, in the absence of this disease they yielded somewhat less than Thatcher. Under leaf rust conditions, they yielded no better than did Regent and some new selections from crosses between Regent and Thatcher, bred at the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory, and now under test.

Seed of the new Minnesota strains will not be available for at least one, and probably two years. In areas subject to leaf rust damage, farmers should grow Regent, or Regent, and make sure they use seed derived from registered strains. Both Regent and Regent have been greatly improved by selection since first distributed. Every farmer growing these varieties would do well to get a start with registered stock—Contributed by Dr. C. H. Goulden, Senior Agricultural Scientist, Dominion Rust Research Laboratory.

Freedom's Fires Must Be Fed Our COAL!

CANADIANS must dig and deliver coal that we may sail convoys, power vital war plants, keep our railroads rolling, preserve the nation's health!

The coal mining industry—miners and management alike—have done wonders to provide coal, but they need help. More workers must be provided, or we face a possibly fall—in this grim hour. Nature has been generous but we must help ourselves. Our mines are rich, but undermanned. By Proclamation, His Excellency the Governor General in Council has declared that labour supply for coal mines ranks as a national emergency. Further, in order to provide manpower for coal, the Governor in Council has issued an Order in Council aimed at swelling the flow of coal from mine to firepot.

This Order is of vital interest to everyone in Canada. Every Canadian should read and study its provisions, to see whether it demands any action on his part:

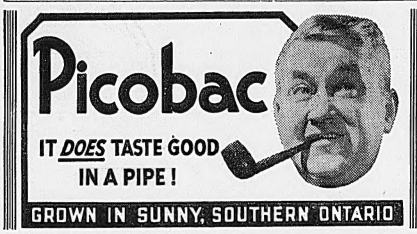

- 1 EVERY EMPLOYER, REGARDLESS OF HIS INDUSTRY, must advise his employees of these Regulations, and he must assist in discovering whether any of his employees have had previous experience as coal mine workers.
- 2 EVERY EMPLOYEE, REGARDLESS OF HIS INDUSTRY, who has had previous experience as a coal mine worker, must report that fact to his employer not later than Tuesday, May 25th, 1943.
- 3 A "COAL MINE WORKER" FOR THESE PURPOSES is anyone who, since January 1st, 1935, has worked under provincial certificate or license in or around a coal mine, or who, since the same date, has been employed for a total of at least 24 months in the production of coal (except at office work).
- 4 EVERY EMPLOYER, NOT A COAL MINE OPERATOR, must report in writing to a Selective Service Officer not later than Tuesday, June 1st, 1943, full details on any of his employees who are ex-coal mine workers.
- 5 SELECTIVE SERVICE OFFICERS ARE AUTHORIZED to require ex-coal mine workers to report for interview and to accept work at a coal mine.
- 6 SELECTIVE SERVICE OFFICERS MAY REQUIRE any man in any employment, if subject to Mobilization Regulations but rejected for Military Training, and certain others exempted from Military Training, to accept employment at a coal mine.
- 7 NO COAL MINE OPERATOR may terminate the services of any coal mine worker without written permission from a Selective Service Officer.
- 8 NO COAL MINE WORKER may leave employment at a coal mine without written permission from a Selective Service Officer.
- 9 EVERY EX-COAL MINE WORKER, returning to the industry under these Regulations, will be paid wages at the established rate for the job at which he is placed; and the Government will pay wages of 40 cents an hour, 8 hours a day and 48 hours a week, to any ex-coal mine worker required to leave his present employment under these provisions, but not placed immediately at coal mining.
- 10 A BOARD ALLOWANCE of not more than $7.50 a week may be paid an ex-coal mine worker now returning to a coal mine, if required to live away from the residence of his dependents.
- 11 PRESENT AND FUTURE COAL MINE WORKERS will be granted postponement from Military Training to February 1st, 1944, by virtue of their occupation; and no coal mine worker will be accepted for voluntary enlistment in the Armed Forces of Canada, prior to February 1st, 1944, except under permit to enlist from a Selective Service Officer.
- 12 NO EMPLOYER IN CANADA, EXCEPT A COAL MINE OPERATOR, may solicit or employ or hire any ex-coal mine worker.
- 13 REGARDLESS OF ANY DOMINION OR PROVINCIAL LAW, male persons at least 16 years old may be employed as coal mine workers, and female persons at least 18 years old may be employed as surface coal mine workers.
- 14 WAR EMERGENCY TRAINING CLASSES will be available for training men as coal mine workers.

Such is the substance of the new regulations. Full details may be had at any Employment and Selective Service Office. If these provisions require action on your part, you are urged in the national interest to act immediately. Severe penalties are provided for non-compliance, but the Government relies on the co-operation of the citizens of Canada to make prosecution unnecessary by prompt action as required. This is a grave emergency. Assist if you can.

Post-War Germany

ONE OF THE MOST VITAL post-war problems which will face the United Nations will be the regeneration of the German people. For over twenty years the press and radio of Germany, as well as the entire educational system have been controlled by the Nazis, and the affect of this on the mental outlook of a large part of the population has been profound. The task of persuading these people that they have been victimized by their leaders and that their whole ideology is distorted, will be a difficult one. It is clear that one way in which it will have to be approached is through the schools, and that the entire system will have to be revised to eliminate all traces of the Nazi influence. It has been suggested that this will have to be done under the supervision of the Allied Nations, and that German schools must accept a standard of education which will imbue the youth of that country with sound principles.

Propaganda Is Cleverly Used

The clever use of propaganda by the Germans has long been recognized. Not only in Germany, but in the countries she has sought to conquer, this weapon has been used with consummate skill. Many Germans were, in the beginning, impressed with the aims of the Nazi party and sincerely believed that it was working in the best interests of their country. When they were drawn into the war, these people realized that the Nazi party was founded on lies and trickery, and they have long ceased to have any faith in their leaders. To these people will fall the task of informing their countrymen of the extent to which they have been deceived by the Nazis, and of convincing them of the many ways in which they have been misinformed. It will also be necessary for the United Nations to be prepared to release in Germany large amounts of propaganda, telling them the truth about the war and the events leading up to it, and proving to them the extent to which they have been duped by their leaders.

Problem Is Not A Simple One

So thorough has been the whole system of Nazi education, both in the schools and of the people as a whole, that the problem of breaking down all the principles they have taught is not going to be a simple one. Although many people in Germany must realize that they have been misled, there are no doubt many others, particularly of the younger generations, who will, until the end, maintain their faith in the Nazi party. These thousands of young people, whose outlook has been completely distorted, will be the most difficult to convince and to re-educate. No doubt post-war plans of the United Nations include a program for dealing with this problem and the time will come when the Germans will have learned that they are not a "superior" race, and that it is not their right to dominate weaker nations. When the German people have thoroughly learned these things there will be hope for permanent peace in Europe.

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

THIAMIN
THIAMIN is also known as Vitamin B1 and it is important both for the nervous system and the digestive tract. It is most important to general health and morale, as has been recognized by the British Government, which pays out thousands of pounds a year for its addition to all flour and bread consumed in the United Kingdom.

Thiamin is easily destroyed by heat and it also dissolves in the cooking water, so one has to be very careful in the preparation and cooking of food to see that as little as possible is lost. NEVER throw away the water in which vegetables are cooked. It is valuable in soups and gravies. Whole wheat bread and whole wheat cereals contain thiamin and if you want to be sure you get sufficient of it add one or two teaspoons of wheat germ to your breakfast cereal. Do not cook the wheat germ with the cereal, but sprinkle it on top or mix it in after the cereal has been cooked. Wheat germ may also be added to flour for muffins or other pastry.

To get enough thiamin everyone should eat a whole wheat cereal, preferably with the wheat germ added, and four to six slices of whole wheat bread every day.

RECIPE

Whole Wheat Muffins

1 cup brown sugar 1 cup buttermilk
2 tablespoons fat 1 egg
1 cup bran 2 tablespoons wheat germ
1 1/2 cups whole wheat flour 2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon soda 1/2 teaspoon salt

Cream fat and sugar; add egg, milk, bran, and the flour, sifted well with soda, baking powder and salt. Mix. Four info well-greased muffin tins and bake in hot oven (425 degrees) for 25 minutes. Wheat germ should be added just before pouring into muffin tins.

Works In Her Sleep

Woman In Australia Has Many Ideas For Inventions

Mrs. Maria Farrell paints pictures, composes music, and invents patent devices and medicines in her sleep, says the Australian News Letter.

She started inventing at the age of 10, when she produced an extra safety-pin, shaped like a treble clef. Since then she has invented 32 other devices and medicines, including a trap to catch rabbits without hurting them, a magic ray which can be thrown 200 metres; a clothes line on which 180 feet of clothing can be hung.

"All these wonderful things just come out of my head as soon as I go to sleep," she said. "I get out bed without knowing it, and start work on the job. All my best work has been done in my sleep."

During the First Great War, the length of torpedoes increased from 20 to 24 feet.

Canadian Ships

Bearing Names Of Fur Trade Firms Are In Service

The Port of London Monthly says ships bearing the names of famous fur trade firms associated with the Hudson's Bay Company are now plying the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific.

The first of these 188 ships which have been contracted for in Canada was Fort Ville Marie (the original name for Montreal) she arrived on her first voyage in the Port of London some time ago.

ARABIC WORD EFFECTIVE

If Arab stevedores in a North African port set a record for moving cargoes in and out of Liberty ships, it can be credited, says the New York Times, to the Arabic vocabulary of Sergeant Pasquale Tanga of New York. Sergeant Tanga's Arabic is one word, used unsparingly. The word is "zid." It means "more."

Use It For Money

Natives Of New Guinea Like Strong American Chewing Tobacco

From 20 to 30 tons of the strongest, blackest chewing tobacco that ever turned a man's insides out is now being supplied to Australia under U.S. Lend-Lease, and some of it is going to American forces in the Pacific area. Reason is that the natives of New Guinea use it for money, passing it from hand to hand in place of dollars and dimes. In a way this shows how much more advanced the jungle people are and how much smarter than civilized folks whose coins do not improve the soup and whose paper currency is no good to eat even with mayonnaise on rye.

Hardened chewers couldn't stomach this Pacific brand of eating tobacco. It is called "twist." This New Guinea baccy is twisted like a rope and cut in seven-inch lengths which are pressure-flattened into sticks a quarter inch thick and half an inch wide. It looks something like a stick of flat licorice, but don't let it fool you. The tobacco is made from stronger, lower grade scraps and stems, fire-cured like snuff, and the sticks are heavily "cased" with a secret dressing which makes them blacker than a Jay's heart.

But two or three sticks will buy a downed airplane's way out of the jungle and back to civilization, complete with transportation via litter or boat, food enroute, and a guide.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

SMILE AWHILE

A woman purchasing war bonds told the clerk:

"I've been saving this money to divorce my husband, but I can stand him better than I can Hitler."

Doctor: "I want to change the death certificate I gave you yesterday."

Coroner: "What is wrong?" Doctor: "I put my name in the space marked 'Cause of Death.'"

He (on his knees): "Darling, I love you with all my heart, with all my soul, and with all the strength of my being."

She: "Are you in earnest?" He (reproachfully): "In earnest? Do you think I'm tagging my trousers in this way for fun?"

Browne was phoning his wife from the office.

"Hello, dear," he said. "I'm very sorry, but I won't be home till very late tonight. I'm fire-watching."

"Oh, you are, are you," snapped his wife. "And who is the flame?"

After the blackout the girl protested: "Erbert, you shouldn't have kissed me like that, with all these people so close around us, even if I'm in the dark."

"I didn't kiss you," answered Herbert, looking angrily around in the crowd. "I only wish I knew who it was—I'd teach him!"

"Erbert," sighed the girl, "you couldn't teach 'im nothing!"

The business man waited outside the public telephone booth, trying to restrain his rising temper. At last, seeing the lady fumbling with the pages of the directory, he opened the door and volunteered his service.

"Can I help you find a number, madam?" he enquired politely.

"Oh, no, thank you very much," she replied, "I'm just looking for a name for my baby."

An old colored man was asked what breed of chickens he considered best. "All kinds has merits," he replied. "De white ones is de easiest to feed but de black ones is de easiest to hide after you gits 'em."

Mrs. Newlywed—"How do you cook pork and beans?"

Mother-in-law—"That isn't the question, my dear. How do you get them?"

Plumber (arriving late): "How have you managed?"

Householder: "Not so badly. While we were waiting for you to arrive I taught the children to swim."

Many walked up to the bank clerk's window and said: "I would like to buy some traveller's cheques."

The clerk asked: "What denomination, please?"

Many replied: "Methodist."

Mrs. Duff—"I always feel better after a good cry. It sort of gets things out of your system."

Mrs. Jawson—"Yes, I know, and it also gets things out of your husband."

Carry On Tradition

Group Of Canadians In India Transporting Freight By Air

Before the war, Canadians were carrying more freight by air than the people of any other country in the world, and today a small group of Canadians attached to an R.C.A.F. squadron in India is carrying on this tradition, said the R.C.A.F. news service.

The dispatch said the fliers are not veteran bush pilots but graduates of the combined training organizations, manning sturdy Hudsons which bear on their noses a flying elephant insignia.

They all say they don't like their jobs; they would rather be "fighting." They fly in a shirt, shorts, socks dragging to the ankles and often a pair of sandals, and they don't look a bit like the picture of the intertidal alrmds in which they are flying suit, parachute and high boots.

But they are doing a job which not only the R.A.F. but also the naval and army high commands in India term a vital one. Carrying it out means piloting the comparatively slow, lightly-armed Hudsons into areas in which it isn't always healthy for a Hurricane or Mohawk to fly alone.

There is a daily run from an air-drome in Calcutta to landing strips and air bases almost in Burma. The landing strips are paddy or rice fields smoothed out "just a mite," for there are no paved runways at the battlefield, and the elaborate control tower of a fully-equipped air-drome gives way to a small bamboo hut with a radio set, a Vercy pistol and a red flag for equipment.

Clever Indian Chief

Leader Of Piapot Tribe Has Whimsical Sense Of Humor

The Saskatchewan Historical Society has recently received from the Chief and Headmen of Piapot's Indian Reserve original documents and letters directed by high officials of the Canadian government to Piapot, the former chief of the band, thanking him for the influence that he exerted upon the surrounding Indian tribes whereby he induced them to remain at home and at peace during the North-West Rebellion in 1885.

Many of the pioneers of Regina and of the Qu'Appelle Valley region remember Piapot well. He was an exceedingly able Indian with a whimsical sense of humor. Once the late Hon. A. E. Forget, then the Indian commissioner, rebuked Piapot for allowing his young men to make a Sun Dance, which he declared upset all the business of the Reserve. Piapot replied that times were very hard and that when his people were hungry they prayed to the Great Spirit to send them food, and their way of praying was to make a Sun Dance.

"That's very fine," replied Mr. Forget, "but we are two big chiefs here together now and I ask you as one chief to another not to make any more Sun Dances."

"Very well," replied Piapot, "I'll agree not to pray to my God in my way if you will promise not to pray to your God in your way." "You are too clever for me," replied Mr. Forget, with a laugh; "you ought to have been a lawyer."—Regina Leader-Post.

A Remarkable Man

Full Value Of Winston Churchill Is Not Yet Known

How can one possibly contemplate the man Churchill? He not only has defied Hitlerism in the darkest of days, but he goes on defying the elements every day of his life. There is seemingly no curb on him. He is the same character who first went to Cuba, then to Khartoum, after India, later to Antwerp, later as Colonel at the front. The man who has more tergiversations in public activity than any man living. England has produced the two great Pitts, a Gladstone, a Rosebery, Tennyson and Shakespeare. Is it too early to measure the worth to the destiny of mankind of Winston Churchill? Should we go off the deep end in hero worship of this Prime Minister? No one can appraise him at full value at this moment. A most remarkable intellect is before the world at this date, a wonderful physical constitution, a man of parts who can paint and lay bricks and write immortal literature.

He is also in the rank of a Cicero as an orator. Let the historians ponder over it all.—St. Catharines Standard.

The Bluff Worked

How British Sergeant Captured Italian Prisoners And Big Gun

In the African desert a sergeant and his crew stood by their disabled tank throughout the night. When day broke they found themselves in the direct line of an attack by enemy tanks. It looked as though the British tank crew were as good as prisoners—if they weren't casualties first. The enemy tanks were firing; so were some of our boys behind. Then two of our armor-piercing shells fell quite close to the trench. They were almost welcomed, because the enemy tanks retreated a bit.

Fifteen minutes later that sheltering tank crew had the greatest surprise. An Italian officer, very sly and span, walked up to them, and said, in English, to the sergeant: "Are you my prisoner, or am I yours?" The reply was prompt: "You're mine." On which the Italian asked: "Oh, has Gables fallen?" (this was some days before it had, but the sergeant had no information either way). "Oh, yes, 12 hours ago," was the British reply. "Well then," the Italian said: "You'd better come with me and collect your prisoners. There's an 88 mm. gun, too."

The sergeant followed him round the corner of the wadi, and there, true enough, was the gun—in perfect order; and the prisoners—14 officers and 38 other ranks. "Okay! Get going," was all the sergeant said, as he marched off his 52 prisoners.—BBC Bulletin.

PATTERN FOR DISASTER

CHAPTER V.

"YOU are to come with us, senior."

Rosita said shortly. "I am afraid that is impossible." Morgan shook his head. "I have given my word not to leave this hotel."

"The word of a traitor?" the girl said contemptuously. "I did not kill your uncle, senorita."

Morgan was trying to keep his temper in check. "This is twice you have judged me on circumstantial evidence. I am afraid you are slightly arrogant, Senorita Velasquez. You seem determined to allow no one to say a word in his own defence."

"Defence?" she repeated, scorn immeasurable in her voice. "There can be no defence against the proof we have."

Her eyes were glittering with hostility, and Morgan realized with a shock that the Velasquez brother and sister were determined on taking the law into their own hands. Swiftly, Morgan brought his arms down in an attempt to seize the girl's gun.

But she evaded him with a quick backward spring. "Esteban!" she exclaimed sharply. At the same instant, before Morgan could move, a great thrust from his eyes and in his ears sounded a cracking report. For a split second Morgan fancied that the girl had pulled the trigger of the automatic. But then he realized that the explosive sound had been the cracking of the whip-whip. Morgan's hands were pinned to his sides, the whip lashed against his chest and he was flung to the floor.

As he fell, both Rosita and Esteban moved toward him. But it was the baggy-trousersed boy who reached the helpless man first. Bending over the American, Esteban Velasquez shortened his grip on the whiphandle and with a single blow against the side of Morgan's head.

From the darkness of unconsciousness Morgan opened his eyes into the lesser darkness of night. At first he believed himself in the throes of dizziness, then realized that the jostling sensation was an automobile in motion. He was reclining, after a fashion, in the back seat of a car.

Street lights fitted past. Ahead of him, silhouetted against the windshield, was the head and shoulders of the driver, distinctly enough for Morgan to know that a woman was at the wheel. The American stirred and shifted himself to a more comfortable position. A hand reached from the other side of the tonneau to tap a pistol muzzle against his side.

"Remain at ease, senior," warned Esteban Velasquez.

Morgan craned his neck to peer at the shadowy figure of the gaucher. "You are making a grave mistake, Senor Velasquez," he said earnestly. "Will you not consider the possibility that I did not kill your uncle?" If you will return to the Casa Grande, my innocence can be proved in a few minutes.

Velasquez's shoulders moved in the semi-darkness. "I have Rosita's word for your guilt, senior. Less than an hour ago she came to the cafe on the Avenida de Mayo where we are entertainers and dragged me to the Casa Grande to seize you. She did not give me time to remove my dancing costume."

THE girl, Morgan recalled, had been present in Col. Velasquez's room when De Nova and Guillermo had accused Morgan of the soldier's death. She must have slipped out of the hotel while Morgan was being fingerprinted to enlist the aid of her brother.

Morgan leaned forward so the girl would hear him above the purring of the motor. "Senorita Velasquez, you left the Casa Grande too soon. Had you remained you would have learned that no maps or papers were in my room; were you there now you would also discover that the fingerprints on the glass are not mine."

"The maps were in your room," the girl answered without turning her head. "I found them and the wallet of Uncle Miguel in your writing desk before I hurried to the Cafe Blanco for Esteban. I have them with me now."

Morgan cleared his throat. Somehow, he seemed to get matters tangled worse than ever every time he talked to Rosita Velasquez. But they were put there intentionally—by someone else.

"It is useless to lie, senior. You do those things so clumsily. Since the first thing you tell us is a lie, we cannot believe anything further you say."

The car rumbled over a bridge that spanned a dark-watered stream. They were now in a district of warehouses, wharves, big buildings and unprepossessing streets.

The car stopped. Velasquez waited until Rosita had stepped out and opened the door of the tonneau, then gestured with the automatic. "You will follow my sister, senior. Do not let the darkness tempt you into running away. My eyesight and my marksmanship are both excellent."

THE automobile had been halted in a tortuous alley, black and somewhat odorous. A wooden gate creaked and Rosita was swallowed by the thicker gloom of a dilapidated porch. Esteban crowded close behind Morgan as the American stumbled up the steps to where the girl was knocking on the door of the ramshackle house.

Twice Rosita knocked, and then a muffled voice responded from within the building. "It is Rosita and Esteban, 'Tio Pancho.' The girl called softly. "Will you let us in, old friend?"

Came the rattle of a chain and the door was pulled open. A figure so bent as to appear almost grotesque shuffled into the doorway. "Rosita!" roared a deep, husky voice. "Dios, old Pancho is glad to see his little ones once more!"

The bent man turned into the house. A match flared, revealing shaggy black hair streaked with gray, a puckered knife scar among the wrinkles of his coarse-skinned face. Morgan was puzzled. The man looked like an unprincipled rogue. This was not exactly the place one would expect to find the niece of the aristocratic Col. Miguel Velasquez.

"You bring a friend?" Tio Pancho, rubbing a grizzled hand over his forehead, asked. "I have discovered the stranger."

Esteban moved his pistol. "Not exactly, 'Tio.' This man has just killed Uncle Miguel."

"The good colonel?" Tio Pancho's bent shoulders straightened. "Dios, you have brought him to the right place for vengeance." His hand moved from jaw to amputated and the lamp glared on the blue of a knife. "I shall be pleased to cut his throat for you, my little ones."

"No, no, Pancho!" Rosita interposed swiftly. "We are not ready for that yet. We want to hide him where the police cannot find him."

Morgan's lips twisted in a bitter smile. "Thank you, senorita, for such faint but unexpected mercy."

"But—" stammered Tio Pancho, his mouth agape. "I do not comprehend. If this man has murdered Col. Velasquez, why do you not turn him over to the police?"

"Because," said Rosita, "to do so would bring disgrace and shame to the name of Velasquez. This man is a Yankee spy and he made his way into the house by the back door. He is not here for his crime; he is here to disclose that Uncle Miguel betrayed his room before Captain Rojas could get there and found—these." Her hand came out of a pocket of her blouse, holding a sheaf of papers. "Plans of the defenses of our country," she continued, tossing the documents upon the table. "You stole them from Uncle Miguel when you killed him, did you not? He did not sell them to you?"

"The answer is no, senorita, to your three charges of theft, murder and bribery. The only time I ever talked to Colonel Velasquez was in the hotel lobby and you heard every word that passed between us."

"Then why did he have those papers on him at the Casa Grande?" That is what will ruin his reputation. The world will believe he had some traffic with you, otherwise he would not have gathered all this information for you to buy or steal from him."

"I think I can explain that, senorita," Morgan volunteered. "If you and your brother will have the patience to listen to me."

The girl assented reluctantly, perhaps because she remembered Morgan's charge that she had twice been swayed by circumstantial evidence.

gan's charge that she had twice been swayed by circumstantial evidence. Morgan was permitted to take a chair. "This story begins in the Caribbean, where German U-boats are doing their best to wipe out both North and South American shipping."

Grouped about the table, Rosita, Esteban and Tio Pancho listened as Morgan related how an American destroyer had captured a crippled submarine and had found in the officer's quarters a copy of a Buenos Aires newspaper.

"You know how newspapers are delivered in bundles to regular customers—with the name written on the outside paper?" On the newspaper found in the submarine was pasted a label reading "Casa Grande." That informed us that the sub commander had obtained the paper at the newstand of the Grande Hotel in Buenos Aires. The date of the paper told us also that the U-boat must have raced all the way from the Rio de la Plata to the Caribbean to be where it was when the destroyer surprised it as it was about to sink a freighter.

Somewhere in South America there is a web of Nazi espionage that enables the Axis submarines to play havoc with the trade of this hemisphere. If that U-boat commander was visiting someone at the Casa Grande, it was possible that the hotel was a strange if not the centre of that web. So because I could speak Spanish fluently, was given a leave of absence from the U.S. Navy and sent down here to investigate."

Have Been Great Help

Salvage Shows For Children On

Prairies Bring Good Results

School children of the Prairie Provinces have been bringing in the scrap.

In Brandon, Manitoba, where a successful fat show had already been held, the Patriotic Salvage Corps of that city, asked the local theatres to present a second salvage show, this time for clean rags. The minimum price for admission to the show was five pounds of rags. The result was an accumulation of nearly 6,000 pounds.

Youngsters in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, brought in 3,000 pounds of dripping to a local theatre when a children's Fats Salvage Show was presented.

Calgary, Alta, also held Fats Salvage shows for the children. The result of their initial experiment was 7,500 pounds of fat. The Calgary Salvage officials estimated that this quantity of fat will make 750 pounds of glycerine, which in turn, will make 5,850 pounds of high explosive, which will fire 48,900 rounds of machine gun ammunition.

Reports have been circulating for some time to the effect that Canadian soldiers serving overseas are permitted to return to Canada on leave after serving overseas for periods exceeding two years. National defence headquarters at Ottawa announced that an ever-growing number of inquiries are being received from wives, relatives, and friends in this regard, and states that no credence whatever should be attached to such reports. No arrangement of this nature exists, and none is contemplated at the present time.

Only a relatively small number of men return from overseas each year. Of these, some are returned on instructional duty, some on escort duty, others for discharge owing to medical reasons, and a very small number for compassionate leave.

Tested Block Busters

British Scientists Have Completed

Interesting Experiment With Bombs

A group of British scientists has completed one of the noisiest experiments of the war to answer the question, "Which is the more effective—one 8,000 pound bomb or two 4,000 pounders?"

They exploded ten 100-pound bombs on different types of surface and measured the blast. Then they got some 1,000-pounders and compared the blast effect with the smaller bombs.

The effect of the 100-pounders, they found, depended too much on the ground or material on which they fell. The 1,000-pounders were far more reliable.

They wanted to make further experiments with 4,000-pounders and 8,000-pounders but they could not find a big enough area of waste land on which to explode them. They infer, however, that an 8,000-pounder does not have twice the blast effect of two 4,000-pounders. But it is far more concentrated and 100 per cent. reliable, and is best for block busting over a limited area—the Krupp works at Essen, for instance.

On the other side, though, 8,000-pound bombs may miss the target entirely, if you drop two 4,000-pounders you are twice as likely to hit the objective.

Waiting For A Speaker

How you wish when you see long crowds waiting lined up to hear a speaker that you were the one they are waiting anxiously to hear. Many are ambitious to be good speakers but are too timid to try.

Some women even tremble at the thought of standing up in front of a group of friends at a club meeting. Such lack of self-confidence is totally unnecessary. Even you can command the attention and respect of others by your poised speaking manner.

I GOT RID OF MY CONSTIPATION WITHOUT "DOSING"!

When we're all doing our best to help win the war none of us can afford to be slowed up physically and mentally by common constipation. . . . The kind caused by lack of "bulk" in the diet. If you're troubled that way, why not get right at the cause instead of "dosing" with purgatives that give, at best, only temporary relief. Here's a simple, "better way" to prevent constipation caused by lack of "bulk"—eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day . . . grand-tasting as a cereal or in crispy muffins . . . drink plenty of water. Then see if you don't notice a big difference in the way you feel and look! Get started right away. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in two convenient sizes. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Make Things Attractive

Women In Britain Have Gardens At Their Searchlight Stations

I would not dare so much as to hint that women can be better soldiers than men; but they are beyond question tidier in some regards. Sir James Grigg said their greatest triumph was seen in their taking over of searchlight stations. A good many of these are set in lonely and muddy fields; but since the women were installed these patchwork deserts have begun to blossom like the rose. The paths grow neat and tidy; and besides the potager proper, where vegetables are being grown successfully, small cottage-like flower gardens embrace the army huts—London Spectator.

Meat Rationing Rules

Some Points Which Will Be Of Interest To Farmers

"Canadian farmers are largely on the 'honor-system' so far as meat rationing goes," said Mr. F. S. Grisdale, Deputy Foods Administrator, in a Farm Forum broadcast the other day. Mr. Grisdale, himself an Alberta farmer, continued: "We are asking farmers voluntarily to reduce their meat consumption by at least one-fifth. That is about the average reduction which will be imposed on those who have to buy all their meat by coupons at the store."

Other points of interest to the farmer were brought out during this broadcast.

If a farm family buys all its meat at the store, ration coupons will have to be used in the ordinary way.

Farmers who kill livestock for their own use must register with their local ration board. They may do this by mail.

At the end of each month they must send in to the local ration board one coupon for each two pounds of meat killed and consumed at home. Two pounds of meat bought at the store would cost two coupons.

Their other coupons may be used to buy meat at the store, in order to provide variety.

If a farmer sells part of the meat he kills to another farmer he must collect coupons to cover half the amount of meat he sells; if, for example he sells 10 pounds of meat to another farmer he will collect five valid coupons which he will forward with his own coupons to the local ration board at the end of the month.

Stamped, addressed envelopes may be obtained from the ration board for this purpose.

nutshell, and I hope there's a kernel in it.

And he added, did Mr. Taggart, that the most common practice of imports has been for the Commodity Prices Stabilization Corporation to bulk purchase at the best possible price and then sell into the domestic trade at whatever price is necessary to maintain ceilings.

The determination of requirements and the management of distribution has been the responsibility of the Foods Administration. They control prices and keep up supplies of food for the civilian population, and, to assist other government bodies, it also acts to requisition or otherwise acquire food for the soldier bodies and girls and other priority needs in case of particular commodities which are in short supply.

Mr. Taggart made it sound so humdrum that I lost my appetite for dinner.
And there's not a secret. Subsidies are not handouts, and the trade gets no special benefits from them.
They are only paid if there is no other way of securing a sufficient supply of an article without exceeding the ceiling price, and are limited only to essential consumer goods, and next week's article concludes the series.

Silk Stockings For the W. D. s!

Great joy reigned throughout the R. C. A. F.
(Women's Division) when orders were received giving the girls permission to wear silk stockings after duty hours

This together with the smart new hats, and neat blue purses now on hand to be issued, will certainly make the W. D. the smartest girl in uniform.

New uniforms of cool khaki woisted are to be issued in the near future, for wear during the hot summer days.

Any girl who is smartly dressed in civilian life need have no hesitation in stepping out in the smart uniform of the W. D.

Time Bombs

The world will have to choose between a revolution begun by nine men in a beer hall in Germany, a hundred men in a sealed train speeding across Switzerland to Russia, or twelve men in an upper room in Jerusalem.

It's great to climb the ladder of success if you if you don't go up wrong by wrong.

Field Inspection Of Crops Registration Of Certification

Because of wartime restrictions and shortage of trained inspectors, it is essential that field inspections of standing crops of cereals or forage be made as economically as possible. It will, therefore, be necessary that growers wishing such inspection make their applications in good time. It has been decided that applications for forage crop inspections must be made prior to July 1st and those for cereal inspections before July 10th.

Application forms can be secured from, and must be promptly to,

Production Service, Plant Products Division,
Dominion Department of Agriculture,
Immigration Building,
Calgary, Alberta.

Growers who neglect making application prior to the specified dates may not receive service this season.
It is, therefore, in the growers' interest that his application for this service should be filed promptly.
